When instalations design buildings

César Martín Gómez

The true richness of this building lies in the meticulous study and combination of its different aspects, such as structure, facades, and services, to create a balanced whole. Perea says that saw himself as the conductor of an orchestra with a wide variety of instruments and musicians.